

Social Work Ethics & Pain Management Training

March 18, 2020

9:00 am – 5:00 pm

Sheraton Detroit Novi Hotel – Novi, MI

Description:

Join us for a training that fulfills all required Social Work Ethics and Pain Management CEUs. After this training, participants will be able to understand ethical decision-making in a survivor-centered, trauma-informed lens. Through an interactive, scenario-based learning environment, attendees will be able to work through dilemmas to understand how SA/DV organizations must approach ethical decision-making in a unique manner to effectively support survivors. Additionally, participants will be able to identify pain that survivors may experience after IPV or SV, understand the shame that can surround that pain, and resources so survivors can access more information.

Objectives:

1. Participants will have a full understanding of the steps for making trauma-informed, survivor-centered decisions by completing case scenarios.
2. Participants will be able to identify the appropriate channels within their organization to process ethical dilemmas.
3. Participants will have the skills and knowledge necessary to correctly identify two resources to affirm pain that SA/DV survivors may encounter.

Audience:

This gathering is designed to fulfill required continuing education for Social Workers and individuals who supervise Social Workers. Additionally, we realize that many people make ethical decisions at agencies and these skills are crucial for people at all levels and backgrounds within organizations and this training is open to all. This is a decision-making conversation that will require open and honest discussion with a mind toward survivor centered dilemmas, positive change, and future oriented thinking.

FACULTY BIOGRAPHICAL INFORMATION

JACQULYN HIPPE, LLMSW, joined MCEDSV in September 2018 as a Program Evaluator. Ms. Hippe is a social justice advocate passionate about lessening the impacts of community violence. Her personal and professional goals encompass creating safety and inclusion for survivors of violence, women, and the LGBTQ community. Her training specialties are program evaluation and understanding the experiences of LGBTQ survivors. She strives to increase the visibility of LGBTQ survivors and validate their experiences. Jacquelyn Hippe believes in service, integrity, and the dignity of all human beings.

After receiving her Master's in Social Work at Wayne State University, Ms. Hippe educated the community about the prevalence of violence as a prevention educator and volunteer coordinator for Turning Point in Macomb County. To expand her service to survivors, Ms. Hippe assisted in the creation of a crisis intervention program in northwest Detroit and provided survivor-centered counseling for LGBTQ people of color (POC). She addressed gaps in service by building partnerships with crisis intervention organizations and formulated a council of leading comprehensive agencies. Her training and educational efforts informed organizations about the gender-based violence and how sexual violence is used as a tool of oppression against LGBTQ POC. Currently, as a program evaluator, she has the opportunity to identify and analyze what survivors experience, related to services and system interactions throughout the state of Michigan. She strives to increase program quality and survivor satisfaction that will assist in ending violence in our communities

ERIN ROBERTS is a Senior Program Director at the Michigan Coalition to End Domestic and Sexual Violence. She has a B.A. in Psychology and a Masters in Social Work from Michigan State University, and many know Erin from her work as executive director of End Violent Encounters (EVE) in Lansing as well as Relief after Violent Encounters – Ionia/Montcalm. Active in community engagement and healing projects for much of her career, Erin has served on committees and/or as a mentor not only in the DV/SA movement, but also with groups invested in helping the homeless, the LGBTQ community, and children and families. In addition to all this, she has also served as a peer reviewer for the Michigan Domestic and Sexual Assault Treatment and Prevention Board, worked as a liaison to the Michigan State University School of Social Work, and prior to her current position with MCEDSV, was a Coalition board member.

Erin is rooted by her passion for social justice and her drive for individual empowerment and community strength. She has a knack for coalition and relationship building. She has a firm belief that at the base of each individual lies the opportunity and strength to thrive and overcome adversity. She believes it is her responsibility to be a positive force for those opportunities and strengths in the people she meets and the community she holds.

AMANDA BARRATT, LMSW, is a Senior Program Manager at MCEDSV. Amanda joined MCEDSV's staff in February of 2017 and is passionate about violence prevention and sexual health education. Amanda works under MCEDSV's prevention grants and does training and technical assistance. With her work rooted in empowerment theory, Amanda uses a strength-based approach to her work. Amanda believes that understanding how power, privilege, and oppression impact survivors is critical.

Social Work Ethics and Pain Management

Amanda began her career serving as an advocate at Central Michigan University where she strove to end sexual violence by doing informational programming, advocacy, medical advocacy, and crisis work. During this time Amanda was also president of a mid-Michigan chapter of Take Back the Night. Amanda received her Master's in Social Work from the University of Michigan in Interpersonal Practice and Management of Human Services. Amanda brings experience working within the mental health field as a trauma therapist and has received accreditation as a Parent Management Training-Oregon (PMTO) certified therapist. Amanda believes in lifelong education and completed continuing education at the University of Michigan for Comprehensive Sexuality Education & Sex Therapy to better serve survivors and prevent sexual violence. In addition to working at MCEDSV, Amanda is a sex & trauma therapist in private practice where she works with survivors and chairs the advocacy committee of a local non-profit that serves survivors of child sexual abuse.

Amanda considers herself a sexual health junkie, enjoys movement & meditation, Netflix, and desserts!
